

The world is visiting Kimberton Waldorf School.

Each year, high school aged students from all over the world — from Asia to Europe to South America — embark on their high school careers with us. Read their testimonials below.

What our international students are saying:

“As soon as you enter the school everyone gives you the feeling that you are a member of the big Waldorf family.”

“There was no day where I wasn’t excited to go to school and meet all of my friends. Every day had something new, something to learn from or to show other people.”

“I took part in so many things and went to many places. Together with my class I went to Virginia on the Odyssey trip, I also went to California, Maryland, New York City, and North Carolina.”

“Every main lesson block that I took part in was amazing. It was so interesting...I had so much fun working on my main lesson book.”

“Kimberton Waldorf School is probably the best school where I have ever been and is my new second home.”

What others are saying...

“We are so appreciative that we found Kimberton Waldorf School. It has built our son as a confident, dependent, enterprising, and passionate young man.”

- Xue Ping, Parent of an international student from Beijing, China

“After 30 years, I am still excited to come to school each day. I feel so lucky to work in a place where children are happy and love to learn, and where teachers share an educational philosophy based on a timeless understanding of child development.”

- Kevin Hughes, Dean of School

“What a wonderful experience it was to learn from these young people and to teach them and share with them the habits and nuances of American life.”

-Allyn Weiser, Host family
